Interdisciplinary Addiction INSTITUTE

July 29 - July 31, 2018 | Omni Colonnade | San Antonio, TX

TXIA INSTITUTE RELEASES SCHEDULE

The Texas Society of Addiction Medicine has released its schedule for its first Texas Interdisciplinary Addiction Institute scheduled for July 29-31 at the Omni Colonnade in San Antonio.

The Institute has tracks on prevention, treatment and recovery, as well as ethics and HIV. It is designed to provide the latest evidence-based information on a variety of topics, as well as provide counselors and healthcare providers with continuing education credit.

Although the Institute is only three full days, it seeks to provide the maximum continuing education contact hours through pre-conference workshops, evening classes and early morning riser sessions. Take a look at the excellent content and nationally recognized speakers slated for the event.

Are You Ready?

The Future of Addictions Treatment in America

Sunday, July 29, 2018 / 1 – 2:30 PM

Diverse changes in key areas are influencing the future of addictions treatment in America. The list is exhaustive and includes but is certainly not limited to: increased life expectancy; technology erasing millions of jobs in America; the role of the addictions professional; demographic and geographic shifts; gender shifts in wage earning; the need for more trauma-informed services; the use of technology in counseling including recovery apps and robots; the shift toward evidence-based practices; the need to honor multiple pathways of recovery; the need to anchor recovery in the natural environment; the recovery school movement; the need for nontraditional sources of funding; and the need to address staff turnover and leadership voids.

Mark Sanders is an international speaker in the behavioral health field whose presentations have reached thousands throughout the world. Recent writings include Slipping Through the Cracks: Intervention Strategies for Clients with Multiple Addictions and Disorders and Relationship Detox: Helping Clients Develop Healthy Relationships in Recovery. He has had two stories published in the New York Times Best Selling book series, Chicken Soup for The Soul, and is the author of five books. He is co-founder of Serenity Academy, a recovery high school in Chicago. Mr. Sanders has received numerous awards including Addictions Professional of the Year in Illinois.

Monday Luncheon Keynote Speaker

Addressing the Stigma of Substance Use and Mental Illness

Monday, July 30, 2018 / 11:45 AM – 1:15 PM
Extra Cost (See Registration Rates)

Previous research has shown that people labeled with drug addiction are viewed as more blameworthy and dangerous compared to individuals labeled with mental illness who, in turn, are viewed more harshly than those with physical disabilities. Endorsement of such stereotypes often lead to less helping behavior and more avoidance of people with drug addiction compared to those with mental illness. This session will identify the costs and benefits of disclosing one's experience with SUD in order to deal with the public and self-stigma of SUD.

Patrick Corrigan is a Distinguished Professor of Psychology at the Illinois Institute of Technology. Currently, he is principal investigator of the National Consortium for Stigma and Empowerment, a collaboration of investigators and advocates from more than a dozen institutions. Dr Corrigan also heads projects examining integrated primary care and behavioral health care in a health disparities framework. He has written more than 400 peer-reviewed articles, is editor emeritus of the American Journal of Psychiatric Rehabilitation, and editor of a new journal published by the American Psychological Association, Stigma and Health. He has authored or edited fifteen books, most recently, The Stigma of Disease and Disability. He also is part of the team that developed the Honest, Open, Proud series of anti-stigma programs.

Closing Keynote Speaker

Motivating the Motivators: Reassess Your Motivation and Rediscover Your Wisdom for a Richer and More Rewarding Professional Life

Tuesday, July 31, 2018 / 10:15 AM - 11:45 AM

The addictions counseling profession is known to be stressful, offering limited recognition and reward. One recent study found that 1 in 3 substance abuse counselors and 1 in 4 clinical supervisors in a national sample of 27 treatment organizations left their jobs in the course of a single year (Eby, 2010). Although worksite factors are known to be a leading cause of burnout and attrition, there is also evidence that an enhanced sense of values awareness can predict professional retention. In this session, participants will have the opportunity to revisit their reasons for entering the field and the values that motivated their careers. The presenter will also offer his reflections on lessons learned from a three decade career as a clinical addictions specialist to explain his own career perspective. This session holds an opportunity for participants to assess the potential impact of values awareness on their professional motivation.

Paul D. Nagy, LPC, LCAS, CCS, an Assistant Professor in the Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences at Duke University Medical Center, is also a licensed clinical addictions specialist and certified clinical supervisor in the substance abuse field. He has served as a board member for Triangle Residential Options for Substance Abusers (TROSA), program administrator for the Duke Addictions Program, expert content director for the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, and Chair and Co-Chair of several Center for Substance Abuse Treatment (CSAT) and Treatment Improvement Protocols (TIPS).
